FRENCH PRESENTIAL ASPIRANTS. The Paris correspondent of the New York Commercial states that the Bonapartists are not only vexed but Sighten-I at the reluctance of the upper classes turnly round the standard of the Prince president. They begin to think reriously of corrying favor with those whom they have excluded from the polls .-Since the result of the votes of the rouncile Las Inc., Luown, all the Bouapartist journals have ceased sestaining the limited suffrage law and the attacks of Le Constituti and upon it are more vigorous than ever. Even La Patrie, once so cornect in its support, now intimates Part it is to be modified essentially. Another curies of uncusiness of the Bonapartiets is the candidateship of the Pance de Joinville, who is personally more popular than the President, though he has not the advantage of so great a name. M. Larschejaquelia's name scens to be accepted by a good many of the Legitimists, but M. Berryer has one to Freshdori to get the orders of Henri V, on that subject, and it is but product to await the result. Among the Socialists, the cambidateship of M. Carnot is gaining ground rapidly. The idea of bringing forward a workman does not seem to have taken. Carnot is the son of the famous Carnot, of the first revolution. He has always been a republican, and, of late years, a Socialist. His wealth, social position and probity, would make him a valuable ally to any party. He will have the suppart of a great number of the middle classes and of the Cavaignacists, besides that of the Socialists proper.

Consoling idea of Death.-" I congraturate you and myself," wrote John Foster to a friend, " that life is passing away. What a superlatively grand and consuling idea is that of death! Without this radiant idea, this delightful morning star, indicating that the luminary of eternity is going to rise, life would to my view, darken into midnight mefancholy. Oh the expectation of living here, and living thus, always, would be indeed a prospect of overwhelming despair. But thanks to the fatal decree that dooms us to die; thunks to that gospel which opens the vision of an endless life; and thanks, above all to that Saviour-friend who has promised to conduct all the faithful through the sacred trance of death into a scene of paradise and everlasting delight."

Firesering patriot; a man of wis domand a man of might; great as truly in repose as in action; in thoughtful moderation as in resistless power. I honor him as lit to be a balance wheel in our political mechanism, which shall give to each and every part of it, a steady, site and effective operation. steady, sate and effective operation.

I home him as one who has more than once stown himself able to stand in serene grandeur umidst warring elements, and to make his voice heard above the loudest swell of the storm, declaring for his country, his whole country forever. I honor him as one who has given additional value to the privilege of being on American, and whose name we have only in repeat, to rebut many of the palonly a repeat, to reone many of the patter calumnies of other nations. There have been periods in our history, when all parties have united in a tribute of att parties have united in a tribute of homoge to his public character; and even when he has appeared on the arena of political condict, and mingled in the hottest of the fight he has never stood in so much as an equivocal attitude, in respect either to dignity or integrity; and his very adversaries have felt constrained to do him honor. His vocation has been that of a statesman; and there his inflaence and his honors have chiefly ms inactive and the honors have emeny centeral; and yet he has occasionally brought an offering to the cause of literature, which has given him a place among her most renowned benefactors. at the Caystal Palace: at the Caystai Palace:
The American department was again
the great texture of attraction, Mr Robbs having, with a fine Barnum touch, got his reward changed into sovcreigns, and spread them out under a glass cuse, with a policeman keeping guard, and an inscription informing the spectators that there were the two hundred guineas which had been awarded for picking Bramah's lock. This was an argument that appealed to the meanest capacity, and excited so much curiosity that the place was a seeme of currost'y that the plane was a scale of busiling all day, every one wishing to assure himself by occular proof that the American had really won the day. The hero of a bundred locks was him-self the observed of all observers and all the observed of all observers, self the observed of an observer, and complained that even in the streets he suffers one of the diragricable concomitants of glory, in being followed by crowds on his way to the palace.

The Telegraph says that General Scott has addressed a letter in reply to one received by him from a Committee of the Pennsylvania State Convention, relative to the Presidency, in which he declines giving his opinion on the questions of the day, and refers them to his past life and services.

HOT AIR COOKING RANGE.

In presenting this Bange to the public, the substrictive would call attention to its merits. He are because the well convinced from his own observations that the public are in want of a Bange with such improvements as will render it more perfect for all purposes of domestic utility and comeny, then any now in the rarket. In the article which he now offers to the public for examination, he has (if he can place my reliance upon the assurance elexperiment dealer in Banges and Boservations) been successfully beyond his most stanguist expectations. The Oran is to constructed as to secure the certainty of thorough behing the bottom of all articles proper to be cooked in anoten. It is unnecessary to ray to those who have used ranges, that no previous pattern has been free from defect in this particular.
